Thanks, David, that's helpful. I don't anticipate any definitive moves tomorrow but I suspect that Pete will appreciate the energy and high-level engagement your group is bringing to the meeting, and that the city is also present. I expect it to be productive.

Hi John,

Following up on our meeting last week, I wanted to provide answers to a couple of questions you had asked during our last meeting. Tom-please weigh in if I miss something below.

Your first question is whether NYC representatives will be present at the meeting with Pete Lopez on Monday. We have asked NYC representatives to join us, and I understand that Rich Gold has put them on the invite list. We anticipate that the NYC reps will be Angela Licata, Susan Amron, and Rob Fox.

You had also asked for a preview of our agenda for the meeting. We have put together a slide deck that provides a high level review of both the early action concept on the first two miles and the treatability study. You will not see anything new, and the deck is generally a bit more general and high level than our discussions with you and the rest of the project team. Per our last meeting, you will see some very general discussion about economic considerations, but it is largely qualitative, and it is contained on 3 slides.

Thanks,

W. David Bridgers
